NEW YORK (AP) — A bomb explosion shattered windows in the Yugoslav and Cuban missions to the United Nations today but apparently caused no injuries.

The blast was the sixth to damage a foreign office in the city since April 22 and occurred despite beefed-up guards at consular and diplomatic agencies throughout the city.

Fire officials described the device which went off shortly after 1 a.m. as "a bomb of fairly heavy size." It exploded on the fourth floor fire escape of a residence on East 67th Street.

The residence, two missions and four other buildings which share a common courtyard off Fifth Avenue suffered damage in the blast. Part of the bomb broke through the fire escape and dug a crater two feet wide and eight inches deep, firemen said.

Cuban officials denied access to their mission to both police and firemen but Yugoslav officials took newsmen inside to show the damage.

$376,000 Is Allowed for Slain Sheep

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Army Claims Service has approved a claim of $376,685 in the deaths of 6,300 sheep last March in Utah's Skull Valley, Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, said Tuesday.

The sheep were killed following nerve gas tests at the Army's Dugway Proving Ground.

Bennett said the claim was submitted on behalf of Anschutz Land and Livestock Co., which manages the Hatch Ranch. Owner of the company is Fred Anschutz of Denver.

The ranch reported the loss of 5,727 ranch ewes, 142 purebred Suffolk ewes and 380 bucks.

The claim approved by the Army has been sent to the secretary of the army for confirmation, Bennett said.

The Army's nerve gas test was conducted March 13, and the sheep began dying March 14. Army officials originally denied conducting the tests. About a week after the sheep had been stricken, the Army admitted it had made the tests.

Various investigatory agencies have said there was no danger to humans.

Housing Bill Near Victory in the House

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's $5.5 billion, three-year housing bill has survived attempts to make deep cuts in the measure and appears headed for House approval.

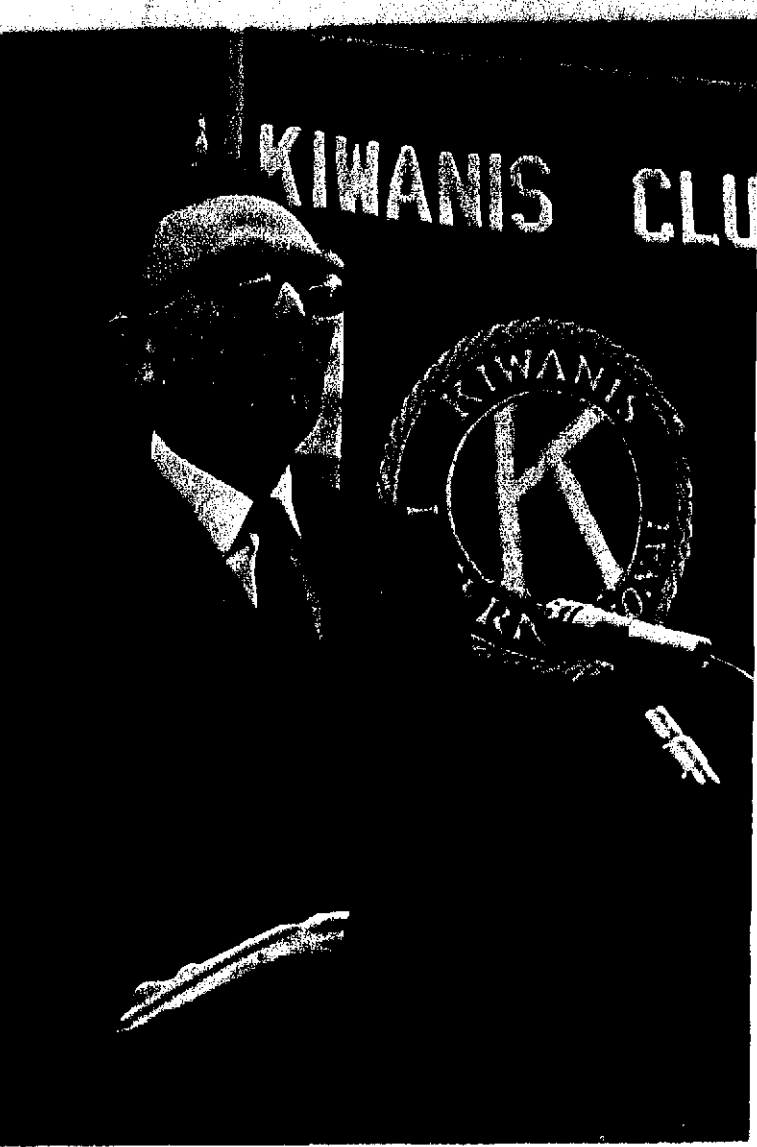

The bill, up for possible final House action today, includes a program for government interest subsidies to low and moderate-income families seeking to buy homes.

One amendment the House adopted Tuesday 118-101 does provide some restraint on the interest subsidy plan.

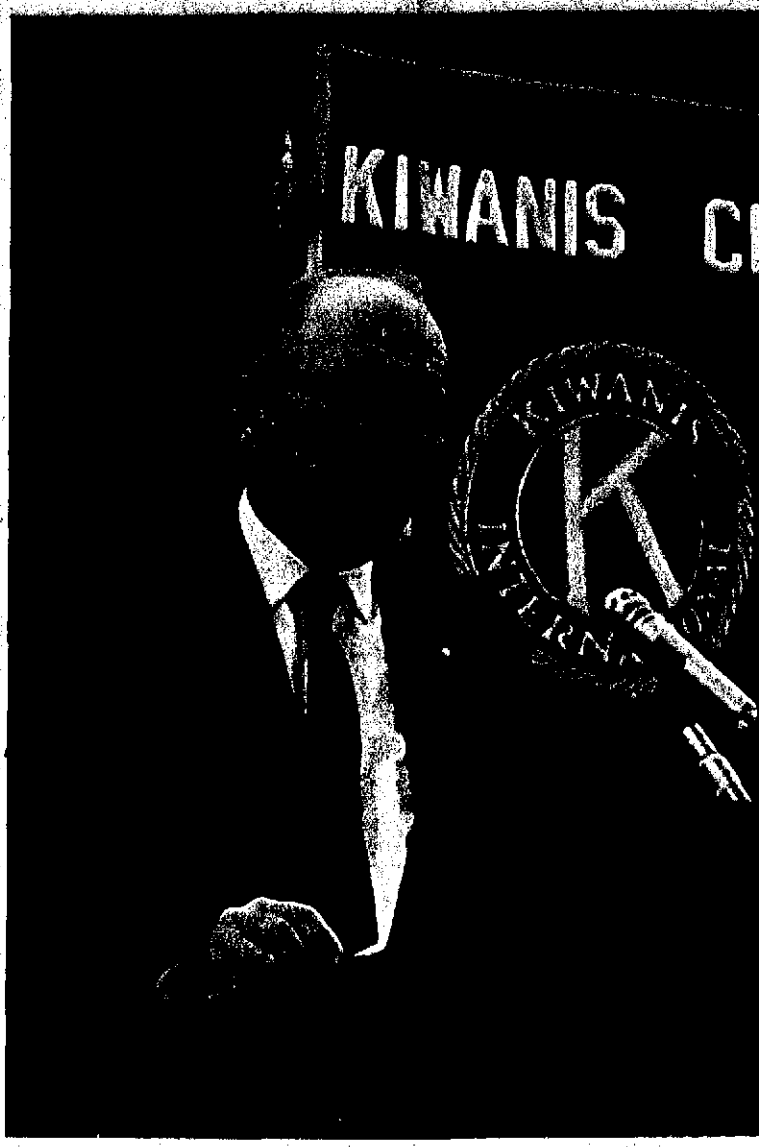

Instead of leaving the determination of eligibility to the Housing Department, the House provided that such aid, which could amount to absorbing all but 1 per cent of the interest, may be provided only to families whose income is not more than 30 per cent greater than that of families eligible for public housing.

This eligibility varies from community to community. A similar provision was inserted for tenants of interest-subsidized rental and co-operative housing.

Silver Dollar Problem

By JOSEPH R. COYNE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stashed away in a sealed vault in the basement of the Treasury Department is one of the most unusual problems ever faced by the nation's money men—what to do with three million silver dollars.

The Treasury has wrestled with the problem since 1964 when it stopped feeding silver dollars into circulation because all the remaining ones were worth much more than $1 as collectors' items.

One Treasury official estimated the value in the coin collectors market at roughly $75 million.

The Joint Commission on the Coinage—the group of Treasury officials, members of Congress and private citizens who periodically review coinage policy—plans to discuss the silver dollar headache in detail at its next meeting Monday.

But some officials don't look for a quick solution. The commission has discussed the problem on and off since its first meeting in May, 1967.

It now has before it, however, the first hard suggestion from a Treasury official.

Robert A. Wallace, assistant secretary of the Treasury, has suggested sale of the silver dollars by the department at the collector-market value.

More than 2.8 million of the dollars now in Treasury hands were made at the Carson City, Nev., mint in the late 1880s. No silver dollars have been minted since 1935 and there are no plans at this time to mint any more.

Place the dollars in circulation and they will just disappear in the hands of coin collectors and the country won't get what the coins are really worth, the Treasury reasons.

Congress in 1966 considered bills to permit the Treasury to sell the coins for $1 each to the heart and cancer societies which in turn would sell them to coin collectors and dealers at a profit.

But the Treasury contended such a plan discriminated against other groups just as worthy and insisted any profits should go to the public, not to a private group.

The silver in the coins is now worth much more than their year.

Arkansan Heads Negro Med. School

By PETE YOUNG
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. Lloyd C. Elam, formerly of Little Rock, is the new president of a medical school from which about half of the Negro physicians and dentists in the country are graduated.

That is not many, but the 39-year-old Elam would like to see an increase in the number of Negro doctors graduated by other schools.

Elam, a Negro, became president of Meharry Medical College at Nashville, Tenn., June 6. He returned to Arkansas last week to address the 75th annual convention of the Arkansas Medical, Dental and Pharmaceutical Association.

In an interview, Elam said there was a serious shortage of Negroes in the health sciences "and the fact that other medical schools have finally opened their doors isn't enough."

It's still hard for a Negro to get into some undergraduate schools, and, of course, medical school is quite expensive," he said.

Elam found his way to medical school through the insistence of a Dunbar High School principal and his parents, who believed everyone should have a higher education.

He set out to be a farmer "but learned you had to be a big businessman to make a go at that" and decided while working his way through Dunbar Junior College here to become a psychology major.

Elam attended Roosevelt University in Chicago on the GI Bill where he was graduated with a bachelor's degree in 1950. He entered medical school at the University of Washington in Seattle then completed specialty training in psychiatry at the University of Chicago, which specializes in the field. He joined the staff there.

In 1961, he went to Meharry as chairman of the Department of Psychiatry, and, in 1966, was appointed interim dean of the schools of medicine. He became president of the university last month.

Elam considered his homecoming and medical association address a personal triumph — one he said he would like to see achieved by other Negroes — only two per cent of the nation's doctors are Negroes.

"What we would like to see is a larger number of Negroes going into health service, and to do so, the increase is going to have to take place at medical school through the country—not at Meharry," he said.

And to do this, more scholarships and more counseling must be offered, he said.

Negroes no longer encounter problems of race at hospitals, he said, except in a few isolated counties in the south. Medical societies no longer bar Negroes and there "is no difficulty getting internship and residency anywhere."

But a Negro's practice is still segregated.

"Those in the cities don't find their practices limited to Negroes but 80 per cent of the Negro doctors practice in the rural or ghetto areas," he said.

Elam said he became a doctor because "I was interested in people." He joined the staff at Meharry because he was interested in training doctors.

Now he is attempting to find financial aid for Negroes to become doctors so they too can help people, he said.

Guy Grigg, president of Hope-Hempstead County Chamber of Commerce, and Vincent W. Foster, president of the Hempstead County Industrial Foundation, were the guest speakers at Tuesday's meeting of Hope Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Grigg reviewed the objectives adopted by the Chamber early in the year and reported the progress to date in achieving those objectives.

Mr. Foster brought a report of the work being done by the Industrial Foundation to "sell" Hope to industrial prospects. Reports from both these civic leaders were encouraging. However, both expressed a desire for the wholehearted cooperation of the people of Hope and Hempstead County in backing every effort to promote our area and make it more appealing to anyone looking for a community in which to locate.

Johnson Home From Latin Trip

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, after a week-long absence, returned to the White House today and almost immediately conferences with top military, diplomatic and intelligence advisers.

A major subject of Johnson's weekly luncheon with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary Clark Clifford appeared likely to be the Honolulu meeting with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

The two-day summit, announced in Saigon, is expected to take place about July 20.

Other diplomatic, military and intelligence advisers were invited to the luncheon following a Cabinet meeting and a Johnson session with Secretary of Commerce C. R. Smith.

Johnson's Air Force One jet landed at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland at 2:21 a.m. EDT, ending a seven-day trip that saw him travel more than 6,000 miles and become the first American chief executive to visit all five Central American countries.

Johnson spent Tuesday at his Texas ranch, getting some rest and catching up on a backlog of paperwork.

Johnson began his travels July 3, taking 40 ambassadors to San Antonio for that city's HemisFair exposition.

The chief executive spent Saturday, Sunday and Monday in Central America, attending a regional summit meeting in El Salvador, then paying flying visits to Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras and Guatemala.

There have been reports Johnson plans another Latin journey soon, to South America.

In Tuesday announcements, the White House said Johnson had signed bills to extend and expand the vocational rehabilitation program, encourage better protection of banks and savings and loan associations from armed robbers, and extend and enlarge the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank.

Opposition to Fortas Weakening

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen says four GOP senators have abandoned their opposition to President Johnson's Supreme Court appointments and opponents "are beginning to vanish into thin air."

Dirksen said again at a news conference Tuesday that a threatened filibuster will not materialize over confirmation of Justice Abe Fortas as chief justice of the United States and Homer Thornberry as an associate justice.

Dirksen was asked if the opposition petition signed by 19 Republican senators—whose leaders have threatened the filibuster—was nothing more than a piece of paper.

"Well, I wouldn't say it's just a piece of paper," he replied. "But there are four on that list who will vote for confirmation. They told me they will."

He would not name the four and none of the 19 has announced a change in their original position.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., meanwhile, said the Republicans "just ought to stop playing partisan politics" with the appointments and accused GOP presidential contender Richard M. Nixon of favoring a "spoils system."

Nixon has concurred with the Republican senators' argument that the court appointments should be made by the new president in January, not by one they call a "lame duck" president.

Dirksen said he was "pleased" with the change in the original position.

Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, to oppose any effort to add on registration and licensing provisions.

Tydings' bill is similar to President Johnson's proposal, the difference being Tydings' bill would require federal registration and licensing only in states that fail to enact substantially equivalent legislation.

The administration bill provides for federal registration of firearms but the licensing of gun owners would be left to the states if they pass legislation meeting federal standards.

The bill cleared by the House Rules Committee, by a reported 10-5 vote, would extend to rifles and shotguns the restrictions on sales of handguns provided in the recently passed crime control measure.

Another provision would prohibit the over-the-counter sale of rifles and shotguns in a state to nonresidents unless the purchaser comes from a state with an adjoining border.

Thus, a resident of Iowa could buy a gun in Nebraska, but not in Colorado.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Scott Whitener of Texarkana and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Clark of Hope.

Vows were exchanged before an altar great with a branch candelabra entwined with greenery and white love birds and flanked by baskets of white gladioli. White satin and stephanotis marked family pews.

Prior to the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was played by Mrs. Arthur Strech at the organ, who accompanied Miss Peggy Rowe, cousin of the bridegroom, who sang, "Because," and as the couple knelt for benediction, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride entered the sanctuary with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a floor-length gown, fashioned by her mother, of white peau de sole styled with an empire bodice topped with a jacket cage of Chantilly lace encrusted with seed pearls and lace scallops and featuring bell sleeves. The chapel train of Chantilly lace edged in lace scallops was encrusted with seed pearls and her veil of silk tulle was caught to white organza petals. She carried a corsage of white feathered carnations and orchids on a prayer book covered in lace. Her only jewelry was a gold chain centered with a pearl, a gift of the bridegroom.

Also in the houseparty were Miss Jan Johnson of Daingerfield, Miss Denise Thyssen of Port Lavaca, cousin of the bride, and Miss Tina Casey of Texarkana.

For travel to Oklahoma and Arkansas, the bride wore a navy linen suit with white and red accessories and pinned the orchid from her bridal bouquet at her shoulder.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Clark, parents of the bridegroom-elect, entertained members of the wedding party and guests with a rehearsal dinner in the Club Room of the Sands Motel, July 5, immediately following the rehearsal.

The Southside Missionary Baptist Church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Sandra Carmel Hair and Leland Clark on Saturday evening, June 15 at 6:00. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Hair of Hope, and the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Clark of Texarkana, Texas.

She carried a long stem yellow carnation. Dressed in similar fashion were the bridesmaids, Miss Norma Jean Clark and Miss Linda Faye Clark, sisters of the groom. Each carried a small bouquet of yellow carnations.

Gary Don Morehead served his cousin as best man. Groomsmen who also served as ushers, were Arnold May of Bodcaw and Wilfred Clark, brother of the groom.

Miss Sheila Hair, sister of the bride, was the flower girl. Master Billy Strange, of Gurdon, nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer.

For the wedding, the bride's mother chose a pink knit dress. Pinned to her shoulder was a corsage of white carnations.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the home of Mrs. B. J. Knight. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth, with a bell and streamers with the bride and bridegroom's name pinned to it. The wedding cake was decorated with yellow roses. It was served by Mrs. Gary Don Morehead. Miss Nancy Brown presided at the punch service. Others dispensing courtesies were Mrs. Gary Polk and Mrs. B. J. Knight.

For travel, the bride chose a blue dacron dress. She pinned a corsage from her bridal bouquet to her shoulder. After a trip to Six Flags, the couple are at home at 415 West 14th Street, Texarkana, Texas.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Herrington and Paul Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Clark, all from Texarkana, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Strange and children, Gurdon.

HONEST WIDOW GETS HONEST ANSWER

Dear Helen: I have been a widow for six years and have had affairs with several men — no regrets — including my late husband's very much married cousin. The other men always found out the truth about my playing around, but my cousin-in-law is very glib. He thinks I've been true only to him.

I don't love him, but he thinks I do. Now I want to get married. Since he is the only man I can more less lead by the nose. But so far I've had no luck leading him to the divorce court.

He sees me as often as he can, and I call him every day, sounding very helpless, so he'll come over and console me. He has never come right out and said he loved me, but he doesn't love his wife, so that's no problem.

Now, Helen, I've been honest with you. Tell me honestly what I'm doing wrong? — NOT GETTING ANYWHERE

Dear N.G.A.: You're doing wrong — period. But you already know this, so I'll hit your second biggest fault: Stupidity! Never call a man "glib" when he gets what he wants while keeping what he has.

Why don't you find a job and leave off being an easy mark for married men? — H

Dear Helen: I was touched by the letter from Mr. C.H. whose two sons are retarded. The part that hit home to me was the way people shun others who are different. This does not necessarily mean those afflicted with mental or physical ailments, but also those whose family patterns are different.

In our neighborhood we have a boy, let's call him Bill, whose parents are separated. When his father comes home to visit, all the neighbors hear are screams and yelling.

Bill has lack of maternal love too. His mother and sisters don't care what he does. His clothes are "different." His house is "different." And so, though the kids are old enough to understand and feel sorry for him, Bill is not accepted as one of them.

For the people in the neighborhood this is a frightening example of class ostracism. Yet we do nothing to help Bill or make him feel wanted. I imagine many encourage this snobbery, for they seem afraid Bill's bad family life will rub off on them.

The saddest thing of all is that Bill knows why he is left out. He's 14, a nice kid, but how long will he stay that way with no love at home and no encouragement elsewhere? Soon he'll become bitter, and then the neighbors can say, "We told you so — that kind always comes to no good end."

I hope you'll print this, Helen, for there are lots of Bills in lots of towns. — NEIGHBOR

Grid Owners Won't Give on Pensions

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — National Football League owners, refusing to buckle to additional player pension demands, Tuesday kept their camps closed to veterans but opened the doors for further negotiations.

The owners said their training camps would remain closed unless the Players Association permits all veterans to report but added the camps would be open to rookies for tryout purposes.

They also announced they would attempt to fulfill preseason game commitments "on the assumption that clubs have an adequate number of players, properly conditioned and prepared to play."

Art Modell, owner of the Cleveland Browns and president of the NFL, left the door ajar for further talks by saying, "We will be available to meet with the Players Association anytime to arrive at a mutual agreement."

Modell called the emergency meeting of owners Monday night after negotiations between the Players Association and NFL owners' representatives broke down earlier in the day.

The players want an immediate hike in their pension fund while the owners want to hold off until 1970 when the merger with the American Football League is complete.

At the completion of the meeting, Modell said the owners are prepared to continue negotiations and were in touch with the players' attorney, Dan Shulman of Chicago.

Modell said the owners were unanimous in affirming their negotiation committee's rejection of "the union's unrealistic demands on pensions."

"They took this action in view of the many uncertainties affecting pensions that cannot be determined until 1970," said Modell. "Thus, as the union has repeatedly been told, the owners will not be in position to conclude pension negotiations until the merger with the American Football League is completed in 1970."

Trouble and Trade Go Together

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers unloaded their costly, 7-foot-1 bundle of contract worries called Wilt Chamberlain Tuesday but may have picked up a low-priced 6-foot-10 package of the same in the form of Darrall Imhoff.

Imhoff, one-third of the manpower the Los Angeles Lakers had to ante up to get the National Basketball Association's all-time great scorer, says he's not ready to go to Philadelphia.

The eight-year NBA veteran, contacted in Los Angeles Tuesday, said he has "a lot of problems" to work out, adding: "I'm a little disappointed about leaving the Lakers since Los Angeles is my home."

He said: "I have been in contact with the general manager at Philadelphia and (General Manager) Fred Schaus of the Lakers. I'll take a lot of time and think it over."

contradict 76ers' General Manager Jack Ramsay, who said in announcing the trade for Imhoff, forward Jerry Chambers and guard Archie Clark: "Our three players are contracted and the Lakers have negotiated with Wilt and reached satisfactory agreement."

Pitchers Dominated, Is Verdict

By B.F. KELLUM
HOUSTON (AP) — "Pitchers dominated the game as they have all season," said Red Schoendienst.

"There was great pitching on both sides," said Dick Williams. "But that's the way it has been all year."

So the opposing managers, Schoendienst of the Nationals and Williams of the Americans, saw eye to eye on what made the low-scoring 1966 All-Star Game turn out as it did Tuesday night.

There were other factors, too — a big one being Willie Mays' opening single and skipper Roy Hays' batting that brought in the Nationals' only run in their 1-0 victory.

But it was mainly a battle in which the All-Star pitchers had the All-Star hitters looking like they belonged on the awkward squad.

It was the Nationals' sixth straight All-Star victory. Buckets of champagne were available in both dressing rooms but only the Nationals popped the corks.

However, the American League took the loss in stride. The only bitter player was Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins — and it wasn't the loss that bothered him.

Killebrew, the American League's first baseman suffered a severe hamstring pull in his left leg while stretching for a low throw from shortstop Jim Fregosi in the third inning.

In obvious pain as he dressed, Killebrew shrugged off most questions with "I'd rather not talk about it."

Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers, the starting and winning pitcher for the Nationals, said he relied mostly on the fast ball and slider.

"It seems like this is the year of the pitcher," he said. "This thing seems to run in cycles. I believe that in the World Series and in the All-Star games the pitchers have the advantage."

Juan Marichal of the San Francisco Giants, another National League hurler, said, "We had great pitching and great defense. That's a combination hard to beat."

Tom Seaver of the New York Mets said low scoring games have been the trend all year.

"Good pitching will overcome good hitting at all times," he said. "I didn't think there would be more than five runs scored in the ball game."

Williams said he wanted to use all 25 of his players and succeeded with the exception of Gary Bell, one of his own Red Sox pitchers. Bell was scheduled to pitch in the eighth but an American League double play ended the inning before he could appear.

Schoendienst, who predicted a low score at his pregame press conferences said, "In a game like this, the hitters don't see enough of the pitchers to get on to them."

Travelers in Win Over Albuquerque

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Arkansas pitcher Phil Knuckles scattered eight hits Tuesday night to defeat the Albuquerque Dodgers 4-1 in a Texas League baseball game.

Knuckles missed a shutout when Von Joshua hit a home run with two out in the bottom of the ninth. He struck out six batters and walked three in posting his sixth victory against four losses.

Albuquerque's Ray Lamb was the loser, giving up four runs and eight hits in six innings.

Hustle Is Long-Time Trade Mark of Mays, Who Won the Game

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Hustle won Tuesday night's All-Star baseball game and hustle has always been the trademark of 37-year-old Willie Mays.

Mays sat slumped in the National League dressing room and told how he scored the only run of the game in a pitcher-dominated 39th All-Star battle.

For Mays, the San Francisco great, he was almost solemn. He scarcely smiled.

As the leadoff batter for the National League, in the first inning, Mays drilled a grounder between the hole at third base and shortstop.

He started his fancy dan jiggling off first base and this seemed to make the American League starter, Luis Tiant of Cleveland, nervous.

Tiant lobbed over a throw. Mays took another leadoff. Tiant whirled and threw hard to first.

"The ball glanced off my back and I saw the first baseman (Harmon Killebrew) wasn't going to be able to handle it, so I took off," Mays said.

Mays dashed to third moments later on a wild pitch that also walked Curt Flood of St. Louis.

Then Willie McCovey of San Francisco hit a hotshot off the hard synthetic turf to AL second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota. Mays put his head down and bolted for the plate. Carew looked to home and decided to go for the double play.

"I had no idea one run would win it," said Mays. "I was just lucky enough to score the winning run."

Mays is so lucky he has scored a record 20 runs in All-Star competition. Mays' single, his 23rd All-Star hit, also is a record. Mays is lucky?

He was named Tuesday night's Most Valuable Player.

Asked how he felt about setting All-Star records, Mays said, "Damned fine."

"I'm glad I was able to score the winning run," Mays said. "I wasn't supposed to play."

Mays, the captain of the National League, wasn't picked on the starting team in his 15th All-Star Game.

Then Pete Rose of Cincinnati broke a thumb, leaving a spot in the starting outfield.

Mays refused to downgrade the AL although it was losing its sixth game in a row in the series. "They played a helluva game," Mays said. "We didn't exactly kill them, 1-0."

But this was a game won with feet, not the bat. And No. 24, one of the greatest home run hitters of all time, still can pick 'em up and lay 'em down.

Pro Gridders Appear for Golf Tourney

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The $200,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament opens with a pro-amateur match today, but even the presence of many of the country's top golfers won't push football out of the picture in Wisconsin.

Among the 100 amateurs scheduled to tee off are Green Bay Packer General Manager Vince Lombardi and nine members of his world champion team, including linebacker Dave Robinson, defensive end Lionel Aldridge and defensive back Willie Wood.

The 50 pro golfers entered include Tom Weiskopf, second leading money winner on the PGA tour and winner of last week's Buick Open, and U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino.

The 144 golfers get down to serious business Thursday, shooting for the $40,000 first prize in the tournament — which offers the second largest purse on the tour.

Public Links Tourney at Dallas Opens

DALLAS (AP) — A group of youthful contenders took off in pursuit of defending champion Verne Callison of Sacramento, Calif., today in the first round of the National Public Links Golf Tournament.

At least three young amateurs, including ailing Arnold Salinas of Dallas, were given chances to unseat Callison for the title over the treacherous 6,800-yard Tenson East course. Former professional golfer Gene Towery, who has been reinstated as an amateur, also is rated among the favorites, along with 17-year-old Rodney Allen.

Nationals Win All-Star on Mays Run

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Things happen when Willie Mays is on a baseball field and that as much as anything tells why the National League won its sixth straight All-Star Game against the Americans Tuesday night.

Wonderous Willie made the difference again, scoring the only run in the NL's 1-0 victory over the Americans in the 39th All-Star renewal held in the Astrodome.

They call the Dome the eighth wonder of the world but you'd have trouble convincing the American League that Willie doesn't deserve that designation instead of the indoor ball yard.

Mays managed to build a first-inning run and in this year of the pitcher one run often is all a team needs. It was all the Nationals needed with six pitchers sharing a three-hit, 11-strikeout performance against the frustrated Americans.

The AL hitters hit only three fly balls all night and none to Mays' center field zone. But Willie fought the freezout on the bases.

Mays, who only became a starter because Cincinnati's Pete Rose broke his thumb Saturday night, opened the game with a single against Cleveland's Luis Tiant.

He led off first and Tiant threw over to Harmon Killebrew. Mays stepped back, then again led away. Again Tiant tossed and this time, disaster.

"He said the ball moved," said Tiant, quoting Killebrew. "I guess it curved."

Mays thought it glanced off his back. At any rate, the ball eluded Killebrew and Mays took off for second.

Now Tiant turned his attention to Curt Flood, St. Louis' fine center fielder who was playing left because a fellow named Mays was in the NL lineup.

Tiant fell behind and on the fourth ball, he uncorked a wild pitch that flew high over catcher Bill Freehan's head.

Tiant said he crossed Freehan's head on the pitch, delivering a high fastball when the catcher called for a low curve.

"It can happen a lot of times when you get a strange catcher working with a strange pitcher," said Dick Williams, manager of the American League team.

Mays moved to third and with Flood at first and none out, he looked like a big inning budding. The AL played the infield back, hoping for the double play. Willie McCovey cracked a sharp shot on the synthetic astro turf right at second baseman Rod Carew.

Carew hesitated for a fleeting moment, but Mays already was bearing down on the plate, so the Minnesota infielder went for the double play. The AL didn't know it, but they had won a battle and lost the war.

"I had no idea one run would win it," said Mays. "I was just lucky enough to score the winning run."

The hit that started the rally was Mays' 23rd and the run he scored was his 20th in All-Star play — both records.

Now that they had their run, it was up to the NL pitchers to hold the edge. And they came through beautifully.

Don Drysdale permitted a leadoff double to Jim Fregosi and the AL didn't have another runner until Tony Oliva doubled against Tom Seaver with two out in the seventh.

Twenty batters went up and down in between against Drysdale, Juan Marichal, Steve Carlton and Seaver. There was another two out double in the eighth by Don Wert and nothing more.

Seaver struck out five batters in two innings and in the last three innings of the game seven of the nine American League batters retired went down on strikes. Ron Reed and Jerry Koosman shared the ninth, fanning two between them.

American League hurlers were almost as sharp, allowing just five hits and striking out nine. But Mays' first-inning run made the difference.

Champion Is Undaunted in British Open

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — Defending champion Roberto De Vicenzo teed off in the first round of the 72-hole British Open Golf Tournament today with the modest conviction that at 45 he has as good a chance as any in the 130-man field to win.

"I'm 12 to 1, the bookies say," the Argentine star said.

"But for my money everybody is 25 to 1. Any one of at least 25 can win it, Jack Nicklaus and all the others and me too, and so that makes all of us 25 to 1."

In fact, Nicklaus at 4 to 1 and Bill Casper at 5 to 1 appeared to be rather false favorites to master Carnoustie's 7,252-yard par-72 layout at such low odds.

A rapid shift in the weather put many of the golf stars in the running, including even some of the short hitters.

The North Sea winds which often turn Carnoustie into a tiger strangely were absent. Enough sun and overnight rain transformed the links into a sheer delight.

Rough, which some players regarded as unfair on about five holes, was cut back Tuesday to eliminate the possibility of a good shot being unfairly penalized.

The forecast was for favorable weather which could threaten Ben Hogan's 1953 record of 282 for 72 holes as well as his final round 68, as yet unbeaten in competition around Carnoustie.

After 18 holes today and another 18 Thursday, the field is cut to low 70 and ties. This again is cut back after 54 holes to the low 45 and ties with Saturday's final going for the biggest purse the British Open ever has offered in its 108-year history.

Prize money adds up to $48,000. The winner's check of $7,200 is small compared to American standards but the man who collects it knows he will have a bonanza of more than $100,000 in fringe benefits plus a special niche in golf's Hall of Fame.

D. Waddle on Winning S.S. Team

MAGNOLIA — David Waddle of Emmet was the first baseman for the Talbot Hall North team which won the summer intramural softball championship at Southern State College recently, according to Larry McNeal, intramural director.

Playing under slow-pitch rules, Waddle was a key performer for Talbot enroute to a perfect season of seven wins and no losses. Talbot finished round robin play with a 5-0 record and successfully carried out its role as favorite in the playoffs by blasting Talbot First Floor and Non-Residents.

Talbot North defeated the Non-Residents 13-4 in the championship game.

A 1963 graduate of Hope High School, Waddle is a senior accounting major at Southern State. A transfer from Louisiana State University, he is a member of the Mulder varsity golf team.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Waddle of Rt. 1, Emmet.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The baseball glove lay flapped on the stool in front of his locker. Beside the stool, with his hands dug into the pockets of his green Oakland warmup jacket, stood Joe DiMaggio. A white cap with a green letter "A" was hunched on his gray hair and the bill tilted down his sloping nose.

The A's carpeted dressing room at Yankee Stadium was nearly empty. The players were on the field. DiMaggio took a few steps toward the door, talking with a visitor. The Johnny, the clubhouse man, called, "Hey, Joe, don't forget your glove." DiMaggio smiled at the solicitousness. "Thanks, Johnny," he replied. "And Johnny, get me some tea, wouldya?"

DiMaggio, the only executive vice president in baseball who doubles as a coach, now ducked his head as he emerged into the dugout, carrying a hard-paper cup of tea. Several people from the Yankee organization happened to be standing around with sports writers.

"Hey, Joe, how are you?" "Boy, we could sure use you now." "Why don't you grab a bat and change uniforms and get in the other dugout?" "Joe, how you been?"

There was a lot of small talk, enthusiastic, but not overly familiar. None of the Johnny, the clubhouse man, good-natured profanity often called, "Hey, Joe, don't forget your glove." DiMaggio smiled at the solicitousness. "Thanks, Johnny," he replied. "And Johnny, get me some tea, wouldya?"

He scanned the park. When he looked to the side his ruddy neck wrinkled thin white lines.

"Sure makes a difference," he said "with the seats painted that light blue."

"Couple other things different around here, too, Joe," someone said.

"Yeah," replied DiMaggio, with a knowing grin, "they put steel girders under the scoreboard." He drained the cup and placed it under the bench.

A reporter asked about the A's. DiMaggio's mood changed, from casualness to business. He seemed, someone remarked later, like a man who smokes three packs of cigarettes a day. He spoke low, but rapidly. He chopped the air with emphatic hand hacks.

"It's a thrill, no question about it, a thrill," he said. "A tremendous satisfaction to see some of these young hitters I work with improving. And the enthusiasm is something. They were in last place last season and now they're way up in the first division. I don't know how long it'll last, but, by God, it's good to see."

"You can feel it on the bench. All these guys talking it up and patting each other on the back. 'Don't let those two runs bother us,' they say. 'We'll get 'em back.' They do, too. They came from four runs back, oh, let's see, in Boston, I think, or one of the other clubs. Down something like 9-5, or maybe 9-6. And won."

"But it's a young club, and they make mistakes. You got to be patient. Most of the hitters have only been in pro ball a couple years. Almost no minor league experience, either. No Triple A. No Double A. Well, maybe half a year Double A. They need to see more pitching. That's what I've been saying all along. They need to see more pitching."

He bolted off the bench. In the days before cushions, it might have been blamed on a splinter.

"You can't teach someone how to hit," he continued. "He has to see a lot of pitching. You can teach an outfielder how to chase a fly ball, which base to throw to. You can teach a pitcher how to work on a hitter. But you can't teach a hitter how to hit. If you could, I'd still be playing. It's the reflexes that count. You can show him little things like improving the stance, though."

He was asked if he had taken batting practice yet. "No," he replied. "My back hurts. But sometimes I shag balls in the outfield. I think I'll swing the bat only once this season. In the Mets' or Yankees' old-timers game. If I play at all. I'm 53 years old now. And my back hurts. I retired 17 years ago and hardly saw a game in between. I went once to Candlestick Park to see the Giants. Sitting in that wind hurt my back. I never returned."

"But I like what I'm doing very, very much. And I still get stacks up to here of mail. You'd think fans would forget and let me fold up. But the kids read magazines and their mothers and fathers tell 'em about me."

An Oakland radio announcer came over and asked Joe to tape an interview. "This is for the home folks," DiMaggio told the group around him. "You know I've got to do this."

The interview was held alongside the box seats. A gaggle of maybe 150 fans gathered. When Joe finished, he was hailed by shouts and waving scorecards and pencils. He went along the rail signing autographs.

One youngster complained, "Hey, get off me, everybody." Another frantically tried to borrow a pencil to have his lumpy, brown lunch bag signed.

A graying, middle-aged man in red polka dot shirt stuck a piece of paper in front of DiMaggio. "What about the kids?" Joe admonished gently. "You've been my idol all my life," he replied. "And I'm still a young boy at heart."

Boating Is Second 'Career' For the Retired in Florida

By WM. T. McKEOWN
NEA Boating Editor

DELTONA, Fla.—(NEA)—You dream of a time you quit your job and do nothing but go boating all day.

But what would that really be like?

"Pretty much the fun you imagine it," according to members of the Deltona Sportsman's Club. Some were boat owners for years before they retired and moved south. Others are getting started for the first time.

"Fishing and day-boating are about equally popular here," reports Ovid Tyo, a Pittsburgh man who bought his first boat two years ago when he retired to this inland Florida town near Cape Kennedy. "We have 32 lakes around Deltona or we can drive 26 miles east to Daytona Beach and launch in the Intracoastal Waterway. Fifty families here, out of our 2,000, already own boats, and about 90 per cent trailer them."

Favorite launching site is on adjoining Lake Monroe, a part of the St. John's River. Across the lake is Sanford, where commercial craft dock after the 120 winding miles from Jacksonville.

Most Deltona boatmen plan sometime to follow the river

Man-to-Man

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

MONTICELLO, N.Y.—(NEA)—This is the sour creamy heart of the Catskill Mountains' borscht belt, a multilingual resort spa second only to the Swiss Alps. In doffed-hat tribute to this fact is a sign in Frank's Men's Wear store which reads: "Se Habla Yiddish."

At Kulscher's, a country club retreat nearby, an international kreplach klatch was in progress. A basketball clinic was being held which included many college and high school coaches. Of all things, eight of the coaches were women and, from all places, Canada. Several of the ladies hablan Francais.

The dolls, enthusiastic cagers, were getting a wonderfully liberal education in the nuances of basketball. Sue Ponten, for example, who coaches at Macdonald College in Montreal and referees girls' games sought out Norm Drucker, NBA official.

"Mr. Drucker showed me some techniques," said Miss Ponten. "One thing in particular he taught was how to get down quickly on fast breaks. Girls, you know, don't run too fast." They don't that is, until Drucker demonstrates techniques.

Instruction by such coaches as Bobby Knight of Army and Tates Locke of Miami of Ohio is especially applicable to the ladies because, unlike American style, girls basketball in Canada is played with men's rules. The only differences are that they have no bonus foul rule and there is less body contact.

"If we played as rough as the men," said Pat Reid of Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, "we'd be out of business."

4,200 already has residents from almost every state and 37 countries. Ohio and Michigan have provided the largest number of boatmen so far.

Biggest difference from boating in other parts of the country, however, has turned out to be the lack of loners.

"Back home," one fisherman recalls, "I used to head out solo all the time. When I was free to go, no one else was, so I went alone or with anyone I could get. Now, home here, I've got neighbors with the same free time. Look out on our waters and you'll see groups of boats with all ways a couple or two aboard. 'It's the same sport, but friendlier.'" tute in Toronto, "all our players would foul out before the first quarter. We call fouls very closely."

"Sometimes we scrimmage with men's teams, either with our freshmen teams or local high school groups, and they usually go easy on body contact. They always beat us but I think we kind of inhibit the guys. We throw them off their game."

The Canadians are rather interested in developing sophisticated defenses. "Lately," said Sally Kemp of Sir George Williams University in Montreal, "we have been using less zones and more man-to-man." Quite a reversal for women's basketball.

A fascinating aspect of the clinic for the ladies is growth of their vocabulary. Mrs. Sandy Knox, of Ottawa's Carleton University, elaborated.

"We've learned," said Mrs. Knox. "That head-hunting means screening an opponent, yo-yo means dribbling, animal and Frankenstein are big men and rats are speedier players. Snails are inside shooters, turtles shoot from farther out and rabbits from way out. And so, pass the pumpkin."

In Canada, the ladies run into several problems. First it is hard to get practice time in the school gym. "The men," said Gisele Zahradnicki of the University of Montreal, "are terribly willing to allow us all the time we want at three in the morning." And when they do practice, the girls spend so much time primping in the locker room that precious few moments are left on the court.

Another problem is boyfriends. Mrs. Knox's star-center-pivot won't be back next season. "She became engaged," said Mrs. Knox, "and her fiancé said to choose between basketball and him. She loved basketball, but had to think of her future. After all, there are no women's leagues."

Just as fortune smiles on those who give it a chance to help them, so does hard luck stay away from those who guard against it.

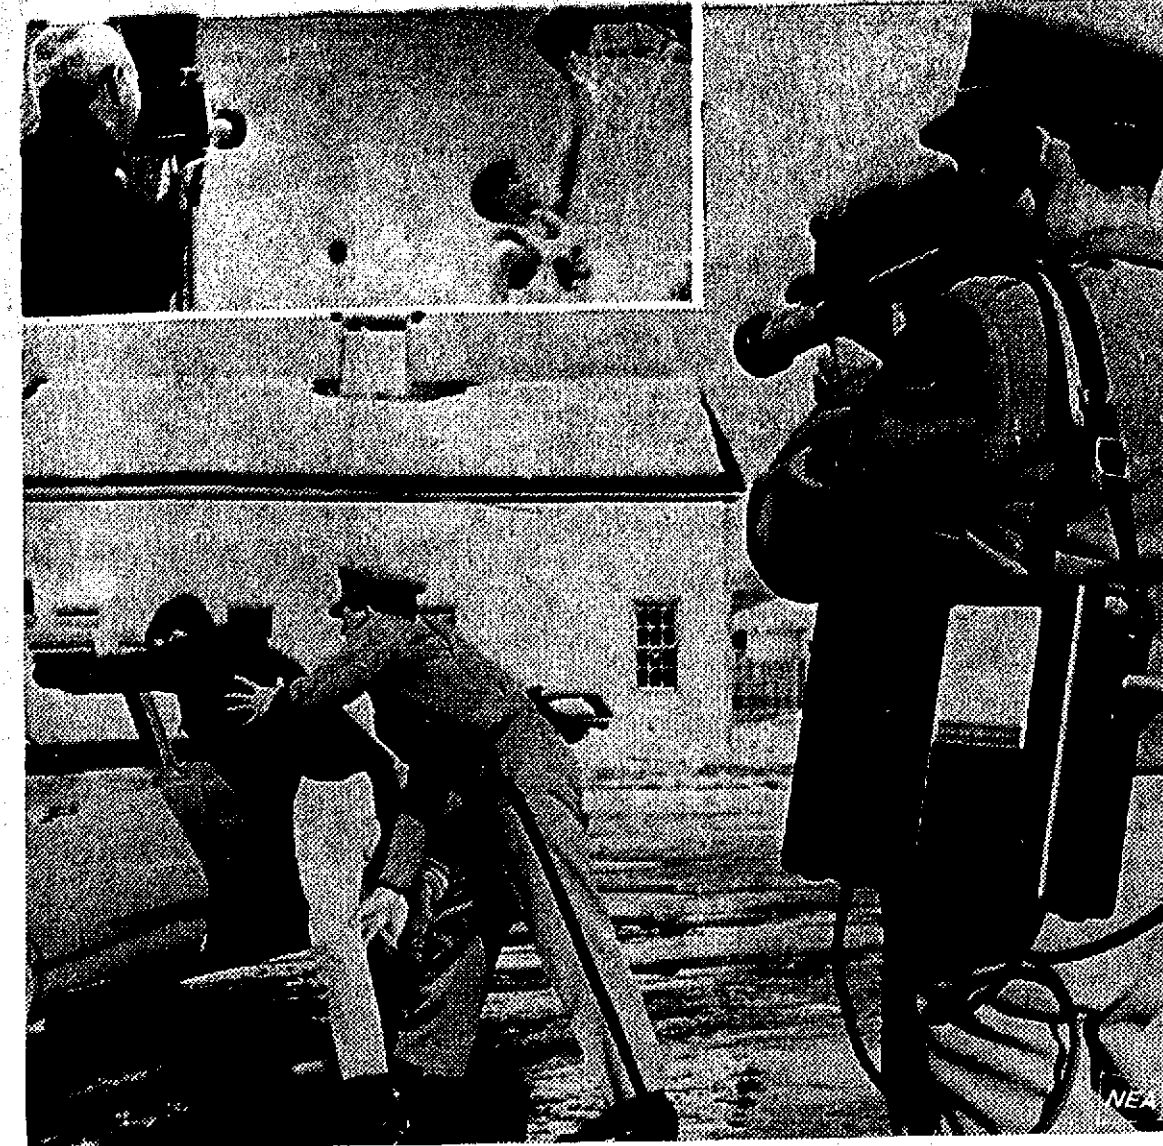

North's two-club bid was Stayman and when South showed four spades North took him to game. The contract is mighty sound. In fact, if spades break and the king of clubs is held by East, declarer can guess where the jack of hearts is and make a slam.

The hand is also set up for bad luck. Spades don't break, the king of clubs is held by West and if declarer does not guess where the jack of hearts is, he may go down. That is, he may if he does not find a way to eliminate the guess in hearts.

In a recent rubber bridge game at New York's Regency Club, Dorothy (Mrs. Jesse) Sammis of Greenwich used perfect technique to insure her contract in spite of the bad breaks.

Dorothy cashed her ace and king of spades, discarded one of dummy's clubs on the king of diamonds, and ruffed her last diamond. Then she led dummy's queen of clubs and let it ride. West was in with the king and could do no better than to return a club.

Dorothy proceeded to cash her ace and jack of clubs and

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG
Severe Heart Pains Due to Varying Causes
By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—What would cause sharp pains in the heart and difficulty breathing?
A—The cause might be inflammation of the outer covering of the heart, angina pectoris, a coronary heart attack, gall bladder colic, indigestion with heartburn or effort syndrome (acute anxiety).

Q—What is pericarditis with costochondritis? My son, who is in the Army, has this. Is it serious?
A—Pericarditis is an inflammation of the outer covering of the heart and costochondritis is an inflammation of the cartilage of the ribs. There is a wide variety of causes of pericarditis, some serious and some not. Costochondritis is painful but clears up spontaneously in a few weeks.

Q—I am taking quinidine for irregular heart beats. Can this drug be taken indefinitely?
A—This valuable drug can be taken indefinitely only if you are under careful medical supervision.

Q—Is fibrillation of the heart curable? One doctor says it is and another says it isn't.
A—This is another condition in which we prefer to speak of control rather than cure. Some victims can be controlled with digitalis and other with quinidine. More recently, the electric pacemaker has been gaining in favor. In some persons with persistent fibrillation, an electric timer can be sewn under the skin.

Q—Why do older persons suffer loss of memory and mental confusion? Is there any treatment for this?
A—The cause is hardening of the arteries in the brain. A great deal of work is being done on the treatment of this condition. The magnesium pemoline and the ribonucleic acid derivative mentioned in an earlier column are not yet commercially available, but three other drugs that are available have been used with some success. They are cyclandelate (Cyclospasmol), diphenhydantoin and procainamide and should be taken under a doctor's supervision.

MEMORIES of MASADA

In the year 73 A.D., atop a huge rock plateau rising 1300 feet above the Israeli side of the Dead Sea, 960 Jewish Zealots made their last stand. The night before the final attack by 6000 troops of the Tenth Roman Legion, each man killed his own family. Ten men were then chosen, by lots, to kill the rest. They, in turn, slew one another. The last man set fire to the palace and fortifications and took his own life with a sword.

This action, and the history of their lives atop the rock, called Masada, has been uncovered by an archeological team under the auspices of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, the Department of Antiquities and Museums of the Government of Israel and the Israel Exploration Society.

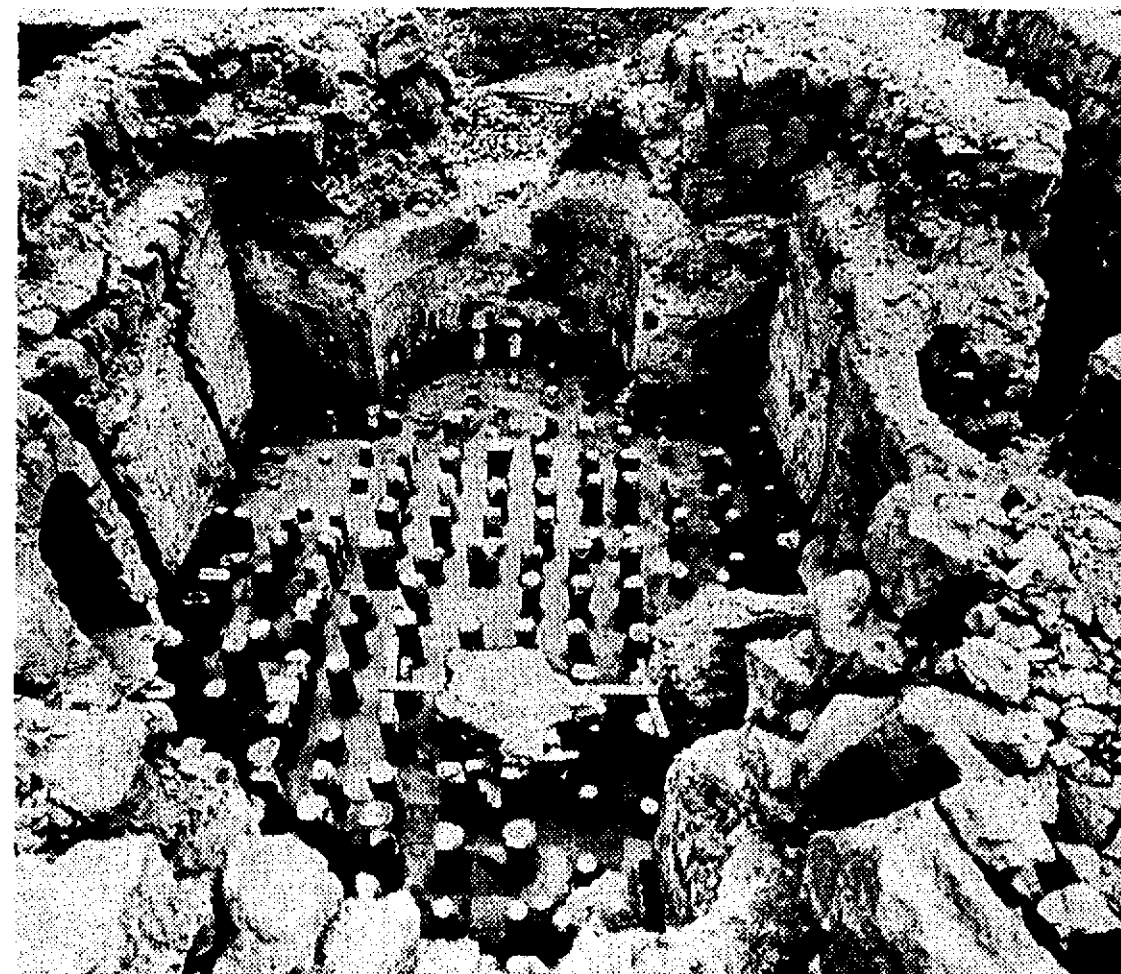

Led by Professor Yigael Yadin, the work took eleven months of excavations. Helicopters made surveys, engineers built a road to the site and more than 5000 volunteers, from 28 nations, poured in at their own expense to do the manual labor.

With the uncovering and reconstruction of a substantial part of Masada completed, skeletal remains of the fighters were revealed. There were prayer shawls, sandals, scroll fragments and shards of pottery, each with a name on it. It was believed the shards represented a lottery of the fighters, the name drawn to be responsible for killing the last men before taking his own life.

All these important findings, together with a historical review of the whole Masada Rock events, will begin a tour throughout the United States following its five-month stay in New York City's Jewish Museum.

Hawkins Pays Humphrey Not Talking 3 Policemen Up; Successor '68 Running Mate Eliminated

By RICHARD P. POWERS

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Hubert H. Humphrey has not offered the vice presidential spot on his Democratic presidential ticket to anyone and isn't even telling his closest associates

whom he wants, say sources close to the vice president.

These sources list a dozen possibilities, including governors, senators, former governors and an ambassador.

One name mentioned is that of Humphrey's principal rival for the Democratic nomination,

Minnesota Sen. Eugene J. Mc-

Carthy.

The name of Massachusetts

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy gets passing mention in talks with sources close to Humphrey.

After the assassination of Kennedy's brother, Robert, then a leading contender for the nomination, some commentators and pollsters saw Edward

Kennedy as the strongest choice

Humphrey could make.

Humphrey himself vividly recalls the anxious weeks he went through in 1964 before being tapped by President Johnson to be his running mate.

Johnson was unopposed for the presidential nomination and waited dramatically until the Democratic National Conven-

Nelson R. to Proceed With

U.S.A. Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Gov. Nelson A.

Rockefeller — rebuffed on his call for a cross-country poll to indicate who the strongest Republican presidential candidate would be — is reported ready to conduct it on his own.

Richard M. Nixon, whose aiders along with Republican National Chairman Ray Bliss rejected Rockefeller's proposal

Tuesday, concentrated his efforts today on increasing his commanding delegate lead for the GOP nomination.

Nixon said he would ask

Chio's 58-vote delegation to consider which GOP presidential candidate would help them most at home in November. He planned to meet late today in Chicago with delegates from nine other Midwest states.

Rockefeller advisers said the governor could be expected to commission his proposed poll

without the cooperation of Nixon or Bliss.

The governor had said the survey would cost at least an average $5,000 per state and said he would finance it on his own "to the degree that I can raise the money to pay for it."

He proposed either a survey of all 50 states or of the states with the largest cities. Aides said he probably would settle on the latter, expecting results in the cities to be favorable to him.

Nixon aide Herbert G. Klein rejected the proposal with the comment: "A time of national crisis is no time for political gimmickry."

Bliss declined to participate on the ground that the national committee should maintain

"complete neutrality" in the party's presidential race.

On the Democratic side,

sources close to Vice President

Hubert H. Humphrey say he has offered the vice presidential spot if he wins the Democratic presidential nomination to no one.

They say he is not telling even his closest friends his preference for a running mate, and expect he will remain silent on his choice until the Democratic National Convention opens in Chicago Aug. 26.

But they acknowledge pressure could cause Humphrey to tip his hand before the convention.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy resumes his Democratic presidential campaign Friday with a western swing and is scheduled to speak minutes before Humphrey at a dinner in Olympia,

Wash., on the eve of the Washington State Democratic Convention.

In other political developments:

—Third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace, in Boston, accused the U.S. Supreme Court of "handcuffing

the police" and said: "The country's not sick, the Supreme Court is sick."

—Former Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, campaigning for McCarthy, said in Atlanta, Ga., he believes

Wallace could average 25 per cent of the vote in states where he is on the November ballot. "I

Repeat Army

Enlistments

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negro

re-enlistments in the Army have dropped dramatically, according to a Pentagon report covering 1967.

The development, which officials says is puzzling, has triggered a study to find out why.

Officials are reluctant to link racial unrest with the slide of Negro first term re-enlistment rates from 66.5 per cent in 1966 to only 31.7 per cent last year.

Doubt Negro Influx in White Areas

By JACK MILLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing experts anticipate only gradual movement of Negroes into white neighborhoods as a result of a recent Supreme Court decision and passage of the federal open housing law.

"Our best guess is that there's going to be no huge, massive influx" of Negroes into white areas, said an authoritative source at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The source said the main reason is that most Negroes simply can't afford to move into most white areas.

Eugene P. Conser, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, agreed and added that moving is costly and "it takes time for people to find a different location. It's a great inconvenience for people to move."

The open housing provisions contained in the 1968 Civil Rights Act, passed in May, rule out discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion or national origin. It goes into effect in three stages and will cover 80 per cent of the nation's housing by 1970.

The Supreme Court decision, issued June 17, holds that an 1866 civil rights law prohibits all racial discrimination in sale or rental of housing.

It goes beyond the new law, whose one major exemption would have permitted discrimination by an owner of his own home who sells or rents it without the aid of a broker.

Housing Secretary Robert C. Weaver said the administration's new housing bill, pending in Congress, will add considerably to the supply of integrated housing within reach of Negroes in low and moderate income levels. He said some of the new housing units will be dispersed in white or predominately white neighborhoods.

But Weaver also said in an interview that one of the factors which might work against large-scale movement of Negroes to white areas is growing black nationalism whose advocates believe Negroes should live among themselves.

Officials said further that many Negroes will want to remain among Negroes; that many will want to stay in their present neighborhoods—even slums—because they have roots there.

The officials agreed that middle-class Negroes are the ones most likely to move.

Asked whether there is expected to be much defiance of the new mandates, a government source said: "There's going to be a few hotheads who will try to resist, but they will be dealt with firmly and fairly."

Information Network Set Up by Police

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Police Department unveiled today what it called the nation's most advanced computer-based police information system.

Chief Clarence M. Kelley said the automated law enforcement response team — ALERT — will eliminate many man-hours of work and could save an officer from going unwarned into a dangerous situation.

The network will keep records and relay in a few seconds information on wanted persons, aliases used by criminals, current lists of fugitives, crime reporting statistics, as well as handle police department personnel records and inventory control.

Officials cited this instance of how the system will work:

A patrolman radios the license number of a car under observation. The police dispatcher feeds the automobile's license number into the computer, which replies in seconds the car's registration, whether the owner is wanted by police or

Nuclear Ban Treaty Faces Senate Delay

By ROBERT T. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons, on which President Johnson has urged swift action, appears certain of Senate passage but possibly not in this session.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says the timing of a floor vote depends on how soon the Senate Foreign Relations Committee winds up its hearings, which opened today with Secretary of State Dean Rusk the first scheduled witness.

"We'll see what develops," Mansfield said Tuesday, shortly before Johnson's urgent recommendation "that the Senate move swiftly" on the treaty.

Mansfield, noting the congressional adjournment target of Aug. 3, said "time isn't a factor" on the treaty, which must be ratified by 43 nations before it can take effect.

The three major nuclear powers—the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain—must be among the 43 and it is expected to be several months before all ratify.

A total of 60 nations have signed the agreement, subject to approval by their respective legislative bodies.

It was signed for this country July 1. At the same time, Johnson announced that the Soviet Union had agreed to begin talks with this country on limiting offensive and defense nuclear weapons.

"Thus there is hope that this treaty will mark the beginning of a new phase in the quest for order and moderation in international affairs," Johnson said in asking the Senate to approve it.

Mansfield, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he would vote for approval and knew of no significant opposition.

Sens. George Aiken of Vermont and John Williams of Delaware, both minority members of the committee, said they also favored the agreement and saw no prospect of rejection.

Driftwood Leaves for Asian Tour

By RUTH ANN VAUGHAN

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Folk singer Jimmie Driftwood left Tuesday on a seven-week tour of Asia hoping to "turn one little grain of sand into a mole hill of friendship."

"I don't really want to go, but I'm going for my country," Driftwood said in an airport interview.

Before he returns to Arkansas, Driftwood will have exposed his talent to audiences in Vietnam, the Philippines, Malaysia, Thailand, Singapore, Lebanon and Afghanistan.

He will be singing, he said, in the interests of peace. "I think that if all the people of the world would start singing together, they'd stop fighting," Driftwood drawled.

Reminded that two entertainers recently were killed in Vietnam, he said, "I'm not afraid." He said the entertainers probably had not obeyed orders.

Driftwood's tour is being financed by the State Department.

Driftwood said his feelings on the Vietnam war are similar to those of Sen. J. William Fulbright, the controversial Arkansan who has spearheaded the opposition to President Johnson's policies in Vietnam.

"I'm for Bill Fulbright," Driftwood said. He added, however, that he and the senator do not always agree.

Fulbright, his wife, Betty, and the reigning Miss Arkansas, Sharon Ann Evans of North Little Rock, saw Driftwood off at the airport.

considered dangerous, or if the car is stolen.

The dispatcher radios the information to the officer, including a warning if a potentially dangerous person is involved. The patrolman thus is prepared in case of trouble.

The chief said the computer system will enable an officer to check out up to 25 vehicles in the time it formerly took to check one by a manual search of records.

Kelley said the Kansas City computer is compatible with the FBI's National Crime Information Center in Washington, and local police hope to add a direct link between the two systems to further speed flow of information.

"Law enforcement," said the chief, "is becoming more businesslike every day."

Britain's Swinging Past Exhibited

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent

LONDON—(NEA)—An authentic gallows goes on exhibit at the London Museum starting the end of May to mark the 100th anniversary of the last public hanging in Britain.

The gallows, which is made of solid oak, will form part of a larger exhibit covering two centuries of British prison life. It was not however, the gibbet used to execute Michael Barrett, the last man to be publicly hanged.

Barrett, a 27-year-old Irishman, was "topped," as they say in prison slang, for his part in a dynamite outrage in which four people were killed and 120 injured. His execution took place in front of London's Newgate prison on May 26, 1888, now the site of the Old Bailey court where major criminals are tried. Of the large crowd that assembled to witness this grisly event many paid top box-office prices for window seats overlooking the scaffold.

The century intervening since Barrett's execution has seen many changes in Britain's penal system. For one thing, capital punishment was abolished in Britain effective Sept. 5, 1965, for all crimes except treason, piracy on the high seas and arson in Her Majesty's dockyards.

For another, British society today is much more humane in its treatment of criminals, though it lags behind the United States in the matter of parole. "Such punishments as floggings and walking the treadmill, once common at Newgate prison, were abolished along with child labor in the coal mines, explains Miss Philippa Fox-Robinson, 24, the attractive assistant curator of the London Museum. "So were leg-irons, thumbscrews and all the other torture paraphernalia that were once part of man's inhumanity to man."

Many of these torture instruments are being displayed at the London Museum as grim reminders of what it was like in the past. On show are the doors of Newgate prison, demolished in 1902, through which condemned murderers passed on their way to the gallows.

Also the London Museum has acquired a complete cell from one of the London parish lockups, with the names of the prisoners who languished there carved on its oak walls. There are also carvings of ships, birds, and of men hanging from a gibbet.

The London Museum also has the wooden shingle which once hung outside the shoe repair shop of John Calcraft, London's official executioner. Calcraft is the most famous (some would say infamous) of all hangmen, probably because he pursued his ghastly trade the longest (45 years).

Calcraft was appointed executioner in 1829 at a retainer fee of one guinea (about $5 in those days) a week, plus one guinea for every execution. He also received a half-crown for every prisoner he flogged, and was given a special allowance for the birch rods he supplied.

It was Calcraft who officiated at the execution of Michael Barrett, dispatching him with businesslike efficiency, having first strapped Barrett's ankles together and placed a white cap over his head.

Barrett went to his death protesting his innocence ("If it is murder to love Ireland more dearly than life then I am a murderer"). Today many people believe that Barrett was telling the truth, though he was certainly a member of the Irish Republican Brotherhood that planned the dynamite outrage.

In view of the doubts concerning his guilt, it is perhaps fitting that a monument will be dedicated at Kilmainham jail, Dublin, later this summer to the memory of Barrett, the last man to be publicly hanged in Britain.
